RESEARCH PROJECT IN LINGUISTICS

Main Sections of the RP	Guidelines: Questions that you should address
Introduction (250 words)	 What is my RP about? Background: What led to my interest in the selected topic for the RP? (introduce the subfield you will work in) Aims of the RP/Research questions: What is my RP about? What are the questions that I wish to address? Rationale for the RP: What makes my Research Project academically important or original, and not trivial? Contribution: Does my RP contribute to existing research? How?
Literature Review (1500 words)	 What is the scholarly research that I have selected to use as background reading to my RP? What perspective/lens am I taking to approach my subject? (can be one or two perspectives) What has motivated me to draw from that particular literature? What have other scholars said about the topic that I want to research? Have I selected the relevant reading that I want to draw upon for my RP? Have I included one or two case studies that support the theories put forward? Have I grouped similar ideas together and presented them under the same subtitle?
Methodology (1000 words)	 How did I carry out my RP? What are my sources of data: What is the site of data collection? Where am I collecting the data from? Who are my informants? Who am I collecting the data from? Other sources of data? (eg. clips, movies, pictures, newspaper cuttings) What are my data collection methods? What tools am I using to collect the data? (eg. interviews, observations) What are the data analysis procedures? How do I propose to analyse the data?
Findings: Analysis and Discussion/Evaluation (3000 words)	 Analysis: What are my findings? What are my main findings – which address/respond to my research aims/questions? (Select at most three main/salient findings) Have I explained each one of these findings in some detail?

	 Have I provided a few relevant examples from my data set to support my claims about the findings? Have I cross-referred to the relevant literature when commenting on each one of my findings? Discussion/Evaluation: What is the relevance of my findings?
	 What do the findings as a whole reveal about the phenomenon under study?
	 Why do my findings show what they are showing?
	• What do the data reveal about the society in which we live?
Conclusion	Summary of my RP
(250 words)	• What has my RP revealed? Shown?
	• How has it contributed to our understanding of the phenomenon under study?
Bibliography	Entries for each reference made in the text
	• Have I included EVERY in-text reference in the bibliography?
	• Have I presented my bibliography following established referencing practice? (eg The Harvard system)
	• Have I been consistent in the presentation of my bibliography?
Appendices	Additional Information
	• Have I included the relevant additional information in the appendices? (eg. interview questions, transcriptions, photos)
